THROUGH THE EYES OF A CHILD

On a recent Saturday, several of our young people and their parents participated in the Hands & Feet Ministry of the South Knoxville congregation. What a wonderful experience this was for them. As young as some of them were, they had the opportunity to serve people who are in need.

Some pictures were posted, and I wish there was space in the bulletin for them all. One, however, especially captured my attention. It is of our Kellen with a new friend that he met there.

There is no prejudice in this picture, is there? Praise the Lord! Children are not born to hate others because they differ in some way. Racial animus is a taught behavior, and I'm so thankful Kellen was not taught that way. What an example he is for all of us!

Jesus said, "...Assuredly, I say to you, unless you are converted and become as little children, you will by no means enter the kingdom of heaven" (Matt. 18:2).

I know there is a lot wrapped up in that statement made by Jesus, but my prayer is that we would become like little children and see others through pure, unprejudiced eyes. And, I'm thankful that is the way we see others at Seymour.
